The Japan Foundation Cairo Office will hold a lecture about “Modern Japan: Politics and Society” in cooperation with the Embassy of Japan in Cairo. The lecture will be delivered by Dr. Daniela De Palma, author of “Contemporary Japan – Politics and Society”, published through the Japan Foundation Program for Publication and Translation. She will speak about Japanese politics and society after the Second World War.

Dr. Daniela De Palma (doctorate degree in the History of Japan): Dr. De Palma held several consecutive posts as Lecturer in the Italian Institute for Middle and Far East, Napoli Oriental National University Institute, Rome University, and is a Permanent Teacher in the International Italian High School “Leonardo da Vinci” in Cairo. She has written many other literary works.

“Al-Yaban Al-Muasira” (Contemporary Japan: Politics and Society)

The book “Contemporary Japan – An Italian Vision of Japanese Society” was published with the support of the Japan Foundation through the Translation and Publication Support Program. It was originally written in Italian under the title “Il Giappone Contemporaneo. Politica e Societa”, (Carocci Editore, Roma, 2008) and was translated into Arabic. This valuable book focuses on the post-war period giving an accurate and balanced overview of contemporary Japanese society.
